

IRS GUN CALLED PO TO RELEASE KIDNAPPED MEN

Renewal of Unrest Caused by Taking of Prisoners Across the Border From Ulster—British Troops Are to Act in Support of Civil Authority in Northern Ireland in Defense of the Existing Frontier Until a New One is Established —Kidnapping May Create a New Breach Between North- ern and Southern Ireland—Michael Collins Says Out- break is Not Due to Boundary Dispute, But to Fear of Fate of Prisoners in Londonderry Under Sentence of Death.

London, Feb. 8.—(By the A. P.)—The government this evening telegraphed the provincial government of Ireland asking it to obtain the release of all prisoners taken across the border from Ulster.

The government also telegraphed the commander of the British troops in Ireland to give the northern government all necessary aid in defense of the northern border and not to hesitate to ask for reinforcements if necessary.

Austen Chamberlain, secretary of the British government, said in a statement tonight that the government was not in support of the civil authority in Ulster, but in support of the existing frontier until a new one is established, whenever the government of Northern Ireland requests its assistance.

"We have called on the provincial government," added Mr. Chamberlain, "to release the prisoners taken across the border. The troops of the northern government will act in support of the civil authority and in defense of the existing frontier until a new one is established, whenever the government of Northern Ireland requests its assistance."

The telegram to Michael Collins repeated the information from Colonel Spender and added:

"If anything approaching this has happened, the military government will take the gravest view of the situation and will act in support of the civil authority and in defense of the existing frontier until a new one is established, whenever the government of Northern Ireland requests its assistance."

Mr. Chamberlain's statement was made in reply to a protest from Captain Craig, commander of the British troops in Northern Ireland, who had been ordered to release the prisoners taken across the border from Ulster.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the government was not in support of the civil authority in Ulster, but in support of the existing frontier until a new one is established, whenever the government of Northern Ireland requests its assistance.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the government was not in support of the civil authority in Ulster, but in support of the existing frontier until a new one is established, whenever the government of Northern Ireland requests its assistance.

PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT PROMISES TO DO ITS UTMOST

London, Feb. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Michael Collins, head of the provisional government of Southern Ireland, replied tonight to the British government's representations concerning the kidnappings in Northern Ireland. He said that the provisional government was doing its utmost to ensure the return to their homes of those kidnapped.

FIFTEEN ARRESTS MADE FOR KIDNAPPING IN ULSTER

Belfast, Feb. 8.—(By the A. P.)—A large number of the leading unionists of Counties Fermanagh and Tyrone in the Ulster area were kidnapped from their homes early today and taken to unknown places, it was reported.

(Continued on Page Seven, Col. Four)

CONSTRUCTION WORK ON 14 CAPITAL SHIPS SUSPENDED

Washington, Feb. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Construction work on fourteen capital ships was suspended today by order of Secretary Denby under direction of President Harding. The step was taken in anticipation of ratification of the naval limitation treaty which resulted from the Washington conference and under which only three of the vessels involved will be completed as warships. The other eleven will be scrapped or converted to merchant ships under the treaty provisions.

VARIOUS VALUATION PLANS DISCUSSED AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 8.—The various valuation plans proposed as the basis of the pending tariff bill were the subject of a two-hour conference between President Harding and republicans of the senate finance committee today at the White House. A final decision as between the proposals was left to the committee.

NOT AN EMPLOYEE OF NEW HAVEN ROAD KILLED LAST MONTH

New Haven, Feb. 8.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad went through the month of January without having an employee killed, said a statement tonight by F. W. Mitchell, supervisor of safety and examinations on the New Haven system. This was the third time the 38,000 employees of the railroad passed through an entire month without a fatal injury.

MOONSHINE WHISKY REMOVES INK STAINS

New Haven, Feb. 8.—"Moonshine whisky" that removes ink from hard-wood floors was a gift to Fred Kingston, local broker, today. Kingston, while moving into a new office, spilled a large bottle of black ink on the new floor. Not having ink-remover convenient, he tried the whiskey which had been given to him. The said "whisky" removed the ink stains and bleached a large white spot in the floor.

Fire on Roof of the Treasury Building

Cordon of Marines and Secret Service Men Guarded Na- tion's Treasure.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Blazing scaffolding and repair materials, accompanied by the explosion of a barrel of kerosene on the roof of the treasury building threatened the structure for half an hour late today, until the fire was brought under control with nearly every engine company in the downtown section in action. A blueprint laboratory and a small contractor's shack on the roof were destroyed. Treasury officials estimated that the damage was slight.

The millions of dollars of the nation's treasure stored in the building was guarded by a cordon of United States marines and secret service men.

No one was injured and no valuable blueprints were destroyed, it was said. The fire had been under repair for several months.

CONVENTION OF NATIONAL DRY GOODS ASSOCIATION

New York, Feb. 8.—Opposition to enactment of tariffs which would become "trade barriers so high as to defeat their own economic purpose" was voiced today before the annual convention of the National Dry Goods Association.

THE $100,000 DAMAGE SUIT FILED AGAINST GOVERNOR LEE M. RUSSELL OF MISSISSIPPI

By Francis C. Birkhead of New Orleans, alleging seduction will be called for trial at the May term of federal court.

PROSECUTION OF SHOPKEEPERS WHO SELL GOODS AND MERCHANDISE IN VIOLATION OF THE SUNDAY "BLUE LAW" HAS BEEN ORDERED BY COMMISSIONER OF PUBLIC SAFETY SPENCER, IN SYRACUSE.

Gold bars valued at $2,000,000 sold to have been held by the Russian soviet government and sent to Sweden for reminting, arrived in New York on the steamship Nyland from Stockholm.

DETACHMENT OF AMERICAN MARINES WHICH HAD BEEN STATIONED AT CAMAGUEY, CUBA, DEPARTED FOR WASHINGTON, ARRIVED AT GUANTANAMO FROM CAMAGUEY.

The United States district court will reopen in New York Feb. 28, it was announced yesterday, and cases under the Volstead act will be taken up. There is a long docket of these.

CHESTER W. WHITE, MEMBER OF THE FINANCE COMMITTEE OF THE TOWN OF ARLINGTON, MASS., AND CHIEF ACCOUNTANT OF THE EVERETT COMPANY, INC., OF CHELSEA, MASS., HAS BEEN CONVICTED OF LARCENY OF $24,000 FROM THE COMPANY.

Henry Murray, the 62-year-old negro who shot Frederick Daniel McShane fatally in a gun fight with fifty policemen in Boston, on January 31, was held for the grand jury on a murder charge in superior court.

THE BODY OF A WELL DRESSED UNIDENTIFIED YOUNG WOMAN WAS FOUND UPRIGHT, BURIED IN THE ROADWAY AT THE BROOKLYN END OF THE MANHATTAN BRIDGE.

Ben T. Nash of Broad River yesterday discovered a perfect specimen of a trilobite, a fossil of an articulated animal which existed in the paleozoic age, in a piece of sandstone from a quarry in Silver Mine, a suburb of Norwalk.

BRITISH COLUMBIA STATUTES PROHIBITING EMPLOYMENT OF JAPANESE AND CHINESE ON GROWING LANDS AND PUBLIC WORKS ARE VALID AND NOT LIMITED BY THE JAPANESE TREATY OF 1913, THE SUPREME COURT OF CANADA RULING.

Madame Marie Curie, noted scientist who discovered radium, was elected a member of the Academy of Medicine. It is the first time a woman has ever been elected a member of any French Academy.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF FORTLAUDERDALE, FLA., WAS ENTERED BY BANDITS WHO BLEW THE VAULT, DESTROYED THIRTY SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES AND ESCAPED WITH CASH, SECURITIES AND JEWELRY TO AN AMOUNT ESTIMATED AT $20,000.

Ten years in Sing Sing prison for stealing 50 cents worth of bread was the sentence meted out by County Judge Haskell to William Burke, 18 years old negro who was indicted for robbing a store in New York.

NEVILLE GASKO, 13, TAKEN INTO CUSTODY AT FARM NEAR WASHINGTON, D. C., WAS BROUGHT TO NEW YORK IN CONNECTION WITH CHARGE OF ASSAULT OFFERED AGAINST TEX RICHARD, FIGHT PROMOTER, BY THREE MEXICAN GIRLS. OFFICERS OF THE CHILDREN'S SOCIETY SAID SHE HAD BEEN MISSING SINCE JANUARY 27.

Sixty-six men, including six alleged writers and six alleged frequenters, taken in raids conducted by the Waterbury police on five alleged policy joints Tuesday night, succeeded in settling their cases out of court. The writers paid $50 each and the frequenters $5 each, a total of $400.

REVEREND BISHOP MURRAY AND MANY PRELATES OF THE DIOCESE ATTENDED THE FUNERAL IN NEW HAVEN OF MRS. MARGARET ELEANOR, WIFE OF REV. JAMES J. EGAN OF WATERBURY, WHO DIED MONDAY.

Other sons are Rev. Fr. John Egan of Jersey City, Major Daniel Egan of the United States army and Charles Egan of New London.

IN VIEW OF THE BERLIN BURGOMASTER'S STATEMENT THAT, WITH THE EMPLOYMENT OF VOLUNTEERS, THE PROSPECTS FOR THE REIN- FORCEMENT OF THE MUNICIPAL ARMY WOULD DIMINISH AS THE STRIKE CONTINUED, THE LEADERS LAST EVENING DECIDED TO CALL THE STRIKE OFF.

"ANDREW DUFF" SCHEDULED FOR NEXT SATURDAY AT TALE UNIVERSITY, WAS CALLED OFF LAST NIGHT FOLLOWING THE RECEIPT OF A TELEGRAM FROM THE PHILADELPHIA-ANDOVER ATHLETIC AUTHORITIES STATING THAT THE TEAM WOULD BE UNABLE TO MAKE THE TRIP TO NEW HAVEN BECAUSE OF AN OUTBREAK OF INFLUENZA AT THE BAY STATE SCHOOL.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

The Portuguese parliament will open on February 11.

Boy Scouts inducted Mayor Fitzgerald of New Haven into their ranks with ceremonies at city hall.

Boat fishing through the ice on Lake Champlain was approximated an industry this winter.

Because of an outbreak of influenza among the inmates, the Connecticut state prison at Waterbury has been closed to the public by the prison officials.

Hearings on various bills relating to daylight saving were begun by the Massachusetts legislative committee on legal affairs.

A hearing on a petition to make Worcester the capital of Massachusetts opened before the Massachusetts legislative committee on state administration.

Admiral Hara Kato and other members of the Japanese arms conference delegation do not plan to leave Washington until next week.

Sleeping sickness is appearing in Brazil on a small scale which would cause great alarm in a country less hardened to wholesale deaths.

The Salvadoran national assembly has issued a decree restoring the republic to the status of a sovereign state under its former constitution.

The $100,000 damage suit filed against Governor Lee M. Russell of Mississippi by Francis C. Birkhead of New Orleans, alleging seduction will be called for trial at the May term of federal court.

Charles A. Howell, a paymaster of the Pennsylvania railroad was robbed of a check containing $1,113 by two men who pounced on him inside the railroad yards at Baltimore.

Secretary Weeks announced he had accepted Colonel John C. Brinkley, of the U. S. Army, for nomination as general in the officers' reserve corps.

Prosecution of shopkeepers who sell groceries and other merchandise in violation of the Sunday "Blue Law" has been ordered by Commissioner of Public Safety Spencer, in Syracuse.

Gold bars valued at $2,000,000 sold to have been held by the Russian soviet government and sent to Sweden for reminting, arrived in New York on the steamship Nyland from Stockholm.

The detachment of American marines which had been stationed at Camaguey, Cuba, departed for Washington, arrived at Guantanamo from Camaguey.

The United States district court will reopen in New York Feb. 28, it was announced yesterday, and cases under the Volstead act will be taken up. There is a long docket of these.

James Donald, an iron-worker, fell ten stories while working on the new Hotel Statler in Niagara Square, Buffalo, N. Y. He has an even chance to recover, hospital surgeons say.

Chester W. White, member of the finance committee of the town of Arlington, Mass., and chief accountant of the Everett Company, Inc., of Chelsea, Mass., has been convicted of larceny of $24,000 from the company.

Henry Murray, the 62-year-old negro who shot Frederick Daniel McShane fatally in a gun fight with fifty policemen in Boston, on January 31, was held for the grand jury on a murder charge in superior court.

The body of a well dressed unidentified young woman was found upright, buried in the roadway at the Brooklyn end of the Manhattan bridge.

Ben T. Nash of Broad River yesterday discovered a perfect specimen of a trilobite, a fossil of an articulated animal which existed in the paleozoic age, in a piece of sandstone from a quarry in Silver Mine, a suburb of Norwalk.

British Columbia statutes prohibiting employment of Japanese and Chinese on growing lands and public works are valid and not limited by the Japanese treaty of 1913, the supreme court of Canada ruling.

Madame Marie Curie, noted scientist who discovered radium, was elected a member of the Academy of Medicine. It is the first time a woman has ever been elected a member of any French Academy.

The first national bank of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was entered by bandits who blew the vault, destroyed thirty safe deposit boxes and escaped with cash, securities and jewelry to an amount estimated at $20,000.

Ten years in Sing Sing prison for stealing 50 cents worth of bread was the sentence meted out by County Judge Haskell to William Burke, 18 years old negro who was indicted for robbing a store in New York.

Neville Gasko, 13, taken into custody at farm near Washington, D. C., was brought to New York in connection with charge of assault offered against Tex Richard, fight promoter, by three Mexican girls. Officers of the children's society said she had been missing since January 27.

Sixty-six men, including six alleged writers and six alleged frequenters, taken in raids conducted by the Waterbury police on five alleged policy joints Tuesday night, succeeded in settling their cases out of court. The writers paid $50 each and the frequenters $5 each, a total of $400.

Reverend Bishop Murray and many prelates of the diocese attended the funeral in New Haven of Mrs. Margaret Eleanor, wife of Rev. James J. Egan of Waterbury, who died Monday.

Other sons are Rev. Fr. John Egan of Jersey City, Major Daniel Egan of the United States army and Charles Egan of New London.

In view of the Berlin burgomaster's statement that, with the employment of volunteers, the prospects for the reinforcement of the municipal army would diminish as the strike continued, the leaders last evening decided to call the strike off.

"Andrew Duff" scheduled for next Saturday at Tale University, was called off last night following the receipt of a telegram from the Philadelphia-Andover athletic authorities stating that the team would be unable to make the trip to New Haven because of an outbreak of influenza at the Bay State school.

Death of Admiral Kabayama of Japan

Had Been Prominent in Ja- panese Government Affairs For Many Years.

Tokio, Feb. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Count Admiral Sukenori Kabayama, a member of the Japanese privy council and former minister of war, died at his home here today at the age of 85 years. He had been suffering of cancer for some time.

Count Kabayama, who was chief of the naval staff in the China-Japanese war, had been prominent in Japanese governmental affairs for a number of years.

Like most of Japan's naval leaders, Admiral Kabayama came from the renowned province of Satsuma. He was born in 1836, the son of a Samurai, a follower of a feudal lord.

The early part of Kabayama's career was passed in the army.

Kabayama always was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

Count Kabayama was a student of naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.

The exploit which won for him everlasting Japanese fame occurred in the China-Japanese war, when, because of his naval technique and his special knowledge made it possible to transfer him from the army to the navy. His transfer occurred after he had attained the rank of major general. The year 1880 found him as first lord of the admiralty, a position of honor.